Why was chiropractic so effective?

Your immune system is controlled by your nervous system. Anything that interferes with proper nerve system function will have a negative impact on your immune system. Subluxations can cause your nerve system to function at less than optimum and therefore have a negative effect on your immune system.

Correcting subluxations through specific scientific chiropractic adjustments help to ensure that your nerve system and, therefore, your immune system are functioning as close to their maximum innate potential as possible. This increases your defenses against outside pathogens and increases your potential to stay healthy.

Knowing the past can help you deal with the present, and future!
